The Clever Parrot

Mr. Rao owned a beautiful green parrot that could talk. He was very proud of it and often showed it off to his friends. The parrot had learned to say, “Good morning!” and “How are you?” and sometimes even laughed like Mr. Rao himself!

One day, Mr. Rao decided to teach his parrot something new. He stood before the cage and said slowly, “Money! Money! Bring me money!” The parrot tilted its head and repeated, “Money! Money! Bring me money!” Mr. Rao laughed. “Excellent! Now my parrot will make me rich!” he joked.

The next morning, while Mr. Rao was out, a thief entered the house. He saw the parrot and said, “Quiet, bird, or I’ll catch you!” The parrot shouted loudly, “Money! Money! Bring me money!” Thinking someone had seen him, the thief panicked, dropped his bag, and ran out of the house!

When Mr. Rao returned, he saw the open window, the dropped bag, and the parrot cheerfully repeating, "Money! Money! Bring me money!" Inside the bag were the thief's stolen jewels and wallets.

20. Describing a festival

In my village, we have a special festival for the village goddess named "Maatha Festival." The festival happens once every year in April. During the festival, people come to the temple to pray and sing songs for the goddess. There is also a big fair with many colourful stalls that sell toys, sweets, and snacks. Children and adults enjoy rides and games at the fair. I feel very happy during the festival because everyone in the village celebrates together with fun.
